The many tokens of appreciation and encouragement in the form of personal mention, through the mails and in subscriptions lead us to the belief that the Press is, appreciated by the public at large and this encourages us to strive to make each succeeding number better than the one before, and in our efforts we ask the support and help of our correspondents and the many friends of the paper that we may be able to make the Morgan County Press one of the best newspapers in Eastern Tennessee.

Squire Adeock's court was the scene Tuesday of a very exciting lawsuit, which as to nature is perhaps not duplicated in the court procedure of the county. Harry Gouge, who lives near here, was arraigned on the charge of a very grave statutory offence. The alleged victim and accuser was little miss Gertrude McDaniel, aged 13 years. The crime is said to have been committed Saturday evening week near the Prudential mines. Gouge was arrested by Constable W H Ward and brought before Esquires Adeock and Webster, who after hearing the evidence of the little girl and Gouge's father, committed the accused to jail until the next term of Circuit Court at Wartburg. The State was represented by Harvey Ward, and the defendant by J M Davis and C C Jackson.
